St. Louis School shares true meaning of Christmas with Andre family

By Sheila McBrayne

Students at St. Louis Catholic School in Leamington showed their true Christmas spirit last week. Students and teachers were asked to give what they could and support a Leamington family who needed their help.

The following message was sent out:

"As you are aware, Heinz has announced the closure of the Leamington plant as of June 2014. While this has had an impact on many, many members of our community there is one family in particular that has been especially hard hit. The Andre family has had many serious struggles. Their eldest daughter Aubri was diagnosed with two kinds of leukemia in the last few months and her father Phil Andre, is an employee of Heinz and will be losing not only his job, but also his much needed benefits. Last, week the family experienced another blow when they were told that the only hope for treating their eldest daughter Aubri was in Calgary, Alberta. This treatment will begin as of December 11. Now the entire family of five must relocate in an effort to save their daughter/sister. As a Catholic school community, we believe that this time of Advent is one in which we must reach out into the community to show the true meaning of Christmas. We decided to use our time, talent and treasure to benefit the Andre family and give them a "Christmas From Home" in Calgary, Alberta."

The school held a toonie pajama day where students were allowed to wear their pajamas to school for a $2 donation. The school also held a Christmas Rainbow Loom Workshop. For a $1 donation the students made special bracelets to commemorate the Advent Mission.

The staff at St. Louis School also asked students to not give any presents to teachers this year, but instead donate to the Andre family.

On Friday, December 6 the Andres attended St. Louis to accept their generous donation. "We thought if each student raised $4, we'd have over a $1,000, but I'm so very proud to announce that we, as a school, raised more than $5,500," said a tearful Jessica Meloche, Grade 4/5 teacher. St. Louis Principal Kelly Rilley also presented Aubri with a Crusaders sweatshirt and made the Gore Hill Public School student an honorary Crusader.
